Business Supporter Story

CareFlight talk with Alyssa Nash, Chief Administrator, Pherrus Financial Services

Pherrus, a Sydney and Fiji-based financial services firm, have partnered with CareFlight as a business supporter since 2018.

CF: What has prompted Pherrus to support local charities?

Pherrus: As a rapidly growing company, we feel a corporate responsibility to give back to our local communities, and also for our customers and our team members, their friends and families to give back too. It is more than just about fulfilling official corporate social responsibility – it is about the opportunity to save lives and help patients.

CF: What benefits has Pherrus seen in partnering with CareFlight?

Pherrus: For the past 3 years, Pherrus have partnered with CareFlight and have received some wonderful recognition benefits through the relationship. Pherrus has been lucky to have a logo on the Rapid Response Helicopter in Sydney, where we are based. While we love that involvement and logo recognitions, we most love the personal touch from our Relationship Manager that helps us feel connected to CareFlight.

We also use the CareFlight partnership to inspire our team members and our business community to branch out and hopefully also give back to community – this is the best incentive of all. We share photos of our team members at the CareFlight base with our clients. We have had both our Fiji and Sydney office teams visit the base and meet the crew over the past few years. It has been really enjoyed by all.

CF: How does this help you with marketing Pherrus?

Pherrus: We can share what we do - we are not just an accounting firm, but a holistic solution. Our support of CareFlight evidences this. We love the human connection and it helps us feel grounded and be able to relate this to clients.

CF: Is the tax deductibility of donations to CareFlight helpful for Pherrus?

As an accounting firm, we completely understand this, however we don't strategically say 'oh we are going to give this much at this point for tax breaks'. If you're going to get a tax break on anything, then charity is a wonderful place to start. It builds partnerships and opens so many positive doors than just tax benefits.
